he went out shopping to get some noise. he found out noise was out of stock. he analyzed noise trading - and nobody knows what happened since then. now that's what our secret agents could tell us: mr. d.myer, the architect, the apostle of st. vodka, the creator - he discovered how to use his lower lip interface. bits and pieces of information reached hymen records' office, packets of sound were transferred via internet within hours - a race against time, speed-frame technology and freeze-frame reality. but we made it and here's the final result.

'lower lip interface' - an orgy of synth-wizardry, complex rhythms and manipulated vocals. forcing beats meet distorted sequences, overlaid with a stunning usage of effects, interrupting breaks and acoustic instrumentation. economically used sampling and distraction add up the tracks, a style architect is known for since the beginning. this is state-of-the-art electronic sound inseminated with sweat, sex and aspiration, showing myer's ability to push a few knobs and get a highly concentrated extract of sweat, pain and lust. this album proves daniel myer as a sixty-minute man who knows how to use all of his' tools.

enjoy these ten climaxes plus the three phantastic remixes by torrent vacine, nebulo and synnack - beware of the lower lip interface!
